THREE CENTS

REDS SMASH NAZIS IN DOUBLE ASSAULT

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

I never pass the Engle gravel pit on the west bank of Sugar Creek along the Snow Hill Road, a few miles southwest of Washington C. H., but I recall the large number of Indian skeletons found buried a short distance below the surface, while the work of removing gravel from the pit was under way a number of years ago.

Dozens of the skeletons were found, but it is not known whether their presence was due to a tribal battle or whether it was the common burial place for these aborigines whose ancestors came over from Asia by way of the Aleutian Island, Alaska and down the west coast of America, to spread out over the continent as mound builders, cliff dwellers and the large numbers of tribes of Indians.

This may sound somewhat shocking to those who are not familiar with excavating for mound builders and Indians to study their artifacts and learn more about them, but I have in my possession dozens of teeth from some of the Indians whose bones were excavated in the Engle gravel pit.

I have shown these teeth to a number of dentists and other interested persons, and they have been amazed at the condition of them.

Many of the teeth had been worn down to the gum, but not one showed a cavity. Apparently toothache was unknown to the Indians.

One of the staple foods of the Indians was Indian Corn or maize, which they cultivated extensively, and they ate much of this corn after it had been parched. It was the chewing of so much corn that resulted in their teeth being worn off. Some of them also chewed leather to soften it and convert it into pliable material for footwear and other purposes.

As a matter of fact the Indians never knew what most of the modern ailments were, because they ate live food, lived simply, and certainly were not traveling 60 miles an hour every day of their lives.

In all probability the average person never notices the large number of birds that fly over the business part of the city, as well as the residential area.

Glancing out of a window in the office today I counted 21 birds in flight over the business part of the city inside of five minutes. This is not unusual, for I have noted the large number of birds in the air before.

Included among the 21 birds were some five different kinds, with English sparrows and pigeons predominating.

From early spring until winter sets in, these feathered friends of mankind flit about the city in surprisingly large numbers from early morning until late evening. Look for them.

TEN FLIERS KILLED IN CRASH OF BOMBER

Big Plane Plunges into Iowa Cornfield in Flames

SIoux CITY, Ia., Nov. 30.—(AP)—Ten Army fliers were killed today when their bomber crashed and burned a half mile southeast of the Sioux City air base.

The plane plunged into a level corn field during adverse weather conditions about 2:15 A. M., shortly after it had taken off.

It was the worst plane crash ever occurring in Iowa.

Captain Fred Shick, post public relations officer, said all 10 men were dead when help reached the plane and they apparently had died instantly. The plane was on a routine flight.

A guard was placed around the area immediately and no civilians were permitted near the craft.

Shick said the names and ranks of those killed in the crash would not be released until their next of kin had been notified.

MORE RATIONING IN PROSPECT WHILE DEADLINE ON UNLIMITED PURCHASE OF GASOLINE NEARS

Voluntary Curtailment in Meat Buying To Be Sought in Campaign and Liquor Purchases To Be Limited to One Quart a Day to Each Customer — Rationing of Coffee Begins After 'Freeze' Ends

COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Ohio motorists who haven't already done so filled their tanks today in advance of the midnight gasoline rationing deadline, as other curtailments appeared.

Office of Price Administration officials reported, after "runs" on service stations Saturday, that no freeze of gasoline in advance of rationing would be made but said rigid controls would be carried out to enforce the program designed to conserve tires.

Coffee rationing became effective yesterday, after sales had been frozen a week. The State Defense Council, meanwhile, opened today a "share the meat" program aimed at voluntary limitation of civilian consumption to 2½ pounds weekly to assure adequate supplies for the nation's armed forces and foreign shipments.

Ralph H. Stone, state defense council director, said housewives would be asked in a six-day drive to limit purchases of beef, pork and mutton and to substitute liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, brains, tongue, fish, poultry and eggs.

Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor announced today that sales of liquor in state retail stores would be restricted at once to one quart a day for each adult customer, effective at once.

The action followed a wave of buying that stripped many store shelves of entire stocks late last week and caused some stores to limit purchases.

Taylor said that wholesale

WHEAT APLENTY TO FEED WORLD

But Increased Consumption Of Bread Gives Concern To Milling Industry

By FRANKLIN MULLIN
CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Rationing of some staple foods and high prices of others have stimulated national consumption of bread and other cereal products, milling and bakery trade reports indicated today.

Commercial bread production is believed to be about 15 percent greater than a year ago. Civilians apparently are eating more than 5 slices per day on the average, soldiers are eating 8 to 9 and when they're in the field a full pound, or equivalent of about 14 slices.

The milling industry expects to regain only a part of the share of each person's diet lost during the period of popularity growth of many other foods, dieting fads and depression.

Increased consumption of flour products can easily be achieved. The United States has more than a two-year's supply of wheat. If they should be called upon suddenly to feed all of Europe, this country and Canada, market experts said, could accomplish the task without strain.

OHIO TRAFFIC FATALITIES TAKE 49 PERCENT DROP

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A drop of 49 percent in motor car fatalities in October compared with the same month a year ago—the greatest monthly reduction in the nation's history—was reported by the national safety council today.

Only 2,000 persons perished in motor vehicle accidents during October, representing a saving of 1,920 lives as compared with October of 1941.

FARMERS' OBLIGATION Increased Food Production Wanted Despite Handicaps

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department told American farmers today that the United Nations' food strategy for 1943 placed upon them the responsibility of producing more supplies than ever before despite shortages of labor, machinery and equipment. In addition to meeting domestic requirements, agriculture must supply at least a fourth of its expected production to a United Nations' pool to feed military forces and civilians. This is double the amount that went into this year's pool.

In making known next year's needs, the department outlined production goals for various crops and livestock, dairy and poultry products. They will be apportioned among farmers on the basis of available land, manpower and equipment.

In general, the goals called for sharp increases in the output of meats, dairy and poultry products, peanuts for vegetable oil, corn for livestock feed, long-staple cotton, dry beans and peas, and potatoes. It asked that wheat production be reduced.

Commenting on the Allied food needs, the department said: "So serious has been the loss of the great food producing area of the Ukraine that food shipments are as important as shipments of planes and tanks and guns to Russia."

"Shipping capacity is gaining on production capacity," the department said. "Construction of new ships is increasing daily. Dehydration of foods is adding the equivalent of extra ships by reducing the space required for transportation of food."

As for labor shortages, the

Bus Boy, 16 Years Old, Takes Blame for Holocaust, Worst in History

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—A tiny match flame in the hands of a 16-year-old busboy touched off a lightning-like fire that snuffed out the lives of more than 477 Cocoanut Grove Night Club merrymakers and injured more than 200—many seriously—in one of the nation's worst holocausts.

Deputy Police Supt. James R. Clafin quoted the youth, Stanley F. Tomaszewski, as saying that he accidentally ignited a paper palm

PROBE STARTED
BOSTON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—State and county law-enforcement officers went into immediate action today to determine whether any law violation had contributed to the Saturday night fire that suddenly converted the Cocoanut Grove Night Club into a house of flaming death for 477 merrymakers.

The boy related, Clafin said, that he was trying to replace an electric light bulb which had been unscrewed by a prankster in the recently opened Melody Room for the club when the match flame brushed the flimsy palm and set off the devastating blaze.

More than 300 of the dead were identified. The flames swept through the highly inflammable decorations as the orchestra leader raised his baton to signal for the National Anthem as a prelude to the Saturday night floor show. Within seconds the crowded night club was a bedlam of screaming women and horror-stricken men dashed for exits, tumbling over tree that caused the terrific blaze which threw about 1,000 persons into a fighting, clawing panic in efforts to reach safety.

Hitler To Clamp Down On French in Toulon

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Roundabout dispatches reported today that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, had arrived in Toulon to deal with the aftermath of the destruction of the French home fleet by its own officers and men.

The Moscow radio broadcast a Tass dispatch datelined Geneva which said Himmler was at the French Mediterranean naval base while the Nazis were carrying on a campaign to arrest and punish all Frenchmen in the former unoccupied zone accused of opposing the German authorities or belonging to illegal organizations.

The Iris, a 597-ton French submarine, was reported immob-ilized at Barcelona, Spain, where her crew brought her for refuge after slipping out of the naval base at Toulon.

The Vichy radio said last night that in blacked-out Toulon rumblings of explosions in the scuttled French ships still could be heard.

From the Nazi-controlled Paris radio, meanwhile, came an accusation that Pierre Laval was responsible, if indirectly, for the suicide of the French fleet.

"Laval's ambiguous policy fostered an attitude of diffidence among officers and men of the French army and navy," the broadcast said. "Collaboration with Germany has been constantly sabotaged by official circles in Vichy."

Axis Bolsters Defenses of Central Europe as Italy Feels Allied Might

By ROGER D. GREENE

Russian shock troops have wrested another stronghold from the Germans under clearing skies on the Stalingrad front and are pressing forward through a blizzard in the parallel offensive west of Moscow while at Hitler's backdoor in southern Europe British and American forces, supported by a rising tide of aerial blows on both sides of the Mediterranean, have stormed forward to within less than 12 miles of Tunisia, which has all but isolated that city and Bizerte, the main Axis stronghold in North Africa.

Germans were declared to be dying at the rate of 10,000 daily as Red Army divisions pushed across the snow, utilizing tactics perfected in the 1941-42 winter drive.

While clouds vanished, cold prevailed in the Stalingrad area. Wind-driven snow cut down visibility on the central front. Moscow observers said the joint operations were the greatest undertaken by the Russians in their 17 months of war.

Australian ground troops, supported by planes and artillery, have captured a beach area about 900 yards east of Gona and have pushed on toward Sanada, it was disclosed today from Allied headquarters in New Guinea.

The Australian attack was launched after well-coordinated, all-day air attacks over the Buna-Gona area had softened up some of the beleaguered Japanese positions.

The advance (which apparently has cut through the elongated Japanese beachhead to the coast) is believed to have cut off a pocket at Gona holding several hundred Japanese.

RAF warplanes blasted Italy before dawn today for the second time in 36 hours, pounding home Prime Minister Churchill's warning to the Italian people to get out of the war or suffer a "prolonged, scientific and shattering air attack."

Simultaneously, a Reuters (British News Agency) dispatch from the Italian frontier reported that 300,000 persons had fled the Italian arsenal city of Turin, normal population 622,000, since the RAF began its new trans-Alpine aerial offensive October 22.

The British Air Ministry said Turin was again the target of the latest assault and that fires started Saturday night were still burning.

Travelers arriving in Turkey from Italy said the Germans were hurriedly building fortifications along the German-Italian frontier and along the Balkan side of the Adriatic Sea against the day that Italy quits the war.

The Frankfurter Zeitung, in an issue which reached Switzerland today, reported that "endless columns" of troop transport vehicles and war materials were moving southward through Italy. The report did not say whether the columns were German or Italian.

In a victory broadcast yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill promised that the war would soon be carried to Italy "in a manner not hitherto dreamed of by its guilty leaders." And he added significantly:

"We expect to expel the enemy before long from 2,000 miles of African coastline. But Africa is no halting place. It is not a seat but a springboard. We shall use Africa to come to closer grips."

On the Tunisian front in North Africa, American and British troops were reported in position for a climactic assault on Tunis, the Axis-held capital after occupying the key rail junction at Djedida, 12 miles northwest of Tunis.

THE WAR TODAY -By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Warning Given to Japan No Less Serious Than One Churchill Gave to Italy

(This column, conducted as a daily feature by DeWitt Mackenzie, is written today by Glenn Babb, Mr. Mackenzie, now traveling in the African war zone, is expected to resume in a day or two.)

Winston Churchill's broadcast yesterday contained the strongest warning he has yet given Italy, delivered in that voice of doom he employs so sonorously and flavored with the richest flow of scorn he has ever turned on Mussolini, who may be labeled for all history by Churchill's fruitfully epithets. But the warning Britain's prime minister gave Japan was no less ominous. While he pointed out to the "hard working, gifted and once happy Italian people" a way of escape through repudiation of the man who has led them to their present plight, he offered Japan nothing more pleasant than the prospect of facing eventually the combined might of the United States and British armed forces, which then should be far the most formidable array of sea and air power the world has known.

"It may well be," Churchill said, "that the war in Europe will end before the war in Asia. The Atlantic may be calm while in the Pacific the hurricane rises to full pitch. If events should take such a course we should, of course, bring all our forces to the other side of the world to aid the United States, to aid China, to aid our kith and kin in Australia and New Zealand in the struggle against the aggressions of Japan."

Among men who know the situation in the Orient there is a growing belief that this second chapter of the war may be as long, bitter and costly as the first, which will end with the destruction of Hitler. A long exhausting war in Europe, no matter who wins, probably would be more to the Japanese taste than a speedy, complete Axis victory.

Events in faraway theaters soon may help determine how long and costly the Pacific chapter will be. There may be battles in Burma and southwest China in a very few weeks which will greatly lessen or enhance the United Nations' chances of coming to grips with Japan on a continental scale. If they should increase the isolation of China and rob us of the prospect of meeting the Japanese army on the continent of Asia, they may add years to the war.

FARMERS' OBLIGATION! INCREASE PRODUCTION IN SPITE OF HANDICAPS

department promised to use its resources to help recruit and transport help to areas where it is needed. It also promised to use its crop loan, food purchase and other programs to support farm prices at levels sufficient to assure producers "attractive prices."

PEOPLE AROUSED

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 30.—(P)—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, asserting that farming had been "the runt pig in the litter" as far as the nation's manpower was concerned, said today he was glad that Americans had recently become concerned about their food supply.

In a speech prepared for a regional meeting of farm officials, the secretary said this concern over food was making the nation realize that agriculture must have manpower before it can produce.

The 1943 program calls for the largest output of food in the country's history to meet military, lend-lease, foreign relief and domestic requirements. "All along I have been afraid," he said, "that most people would not see the critical situation until they read it in declining farm production figures."

"Even now," he added, "the new recognition does not come soon enough to save farmers from a very tight manpower squeeze. About a million and a half workers have left farms during the past year. We will have to make the best we can, and be thankful that the rest of the country is coming to realize what we are up against."

As it is, Wickard said, farmers will have to work "from dawn until sundown" to meet their production goals.

As compared with this year's production, the 1943 farm program calls for more meat and milk, more poultry and eggs, more of the vegetables high in food value and less of those low in food value; more peanuts for food and vegetable oil, more long-staple cotton and less short-staple cotton, more corn and less wheat, more potatoes, beans and peas.

GASOLINE RUSH HERE IS Milder THAN EXPECTED

Clean-up of Registration Set for Tuesday at High School Gym

The last minute rush to fill gasoline tanks before nationwide rationing becomes effective Tuesday, failed to develop to the proportions some had anticipated in Washington C. H., filling station operators reported as the deadline on unrestricted driving drew near Monday afternoon.

However, the belief was expressed that most of them had been filled to capacity during the first few days of last week.

Meanwhile, coffee went on the ration list after the "freeze" on the sale last week was thawed out Saturday. But, here again the anticipated rush to replenish supplies failed to develop, most grocers said.

The registration of automobile owners for gasoline rations was completed Saturday night, except for the loose ends and controversial questions which the board had expected in even greater volume than piled up.

Non-highway and truck gasoline coupon books will be issued Tuesday from 6 until 9 P. M. at the high school auditorium here, the chairman of the county's Rationing Board, W. L. O'Brien, said Monday.

He explained that "those who have not received certificates (of war necessity) will be taken care of at this time." Continuing, he declared: "This will be the final registration at the high school gymnasium (Paint Street entrance) all applications must be in—if you want gasoline get there Tuesday evening."

The chairman declared also that those who have not yet received their A and B books will be taken care of at the same time and place. This will be the last chance to get these books for two weeks, he warned.

The chairman said he realized there was a lot of confusion over rationing and, while he said he found it difficult to understand the misunderstandings, he added that the board was always ready to give explanations to the best of its ability. He pointed out that the gasoline coupons in both the A and B books are good for four gallons at the present time. But, he explained that the figure was not printed because it thus would be impossible to raise or lower the ration in the future as circumstances might dictate. The ration on the B books, he said, were "tailor made" to fit the individual cases by spreading the coupons out over varying periods of time.

From now on, the big headache will fall on garage and filling station operators in making the gasoline or mileage rationing effective and on the grocers in helping housewives keep straight on their sugar and coffee rations.

Meanwhile, the snarl which have plagued the Rationing Board in the gasoline registration were confidently expected to be smoothed out in the near future. The county chairman has assured farmers in particular and truck operators in general that they will have all the gasoline they need for essential uses. Again, however, he emphasized the word essential and promised the board would "go to bat" to see that none here suffered from restrictions.

sales would be restricted to an amount equal to the gallonage purchased by each permit holder in the comparable week a year ago, except that where the supply of a brand is limited, sales would be on a proportionately smaller basis.

Taylor said that a "number of causes and circumstances" led to the restrictions. Chiefly, he said, the distilling industry now is engaged completely in production of alcohol for war and liquor for public consumption must come out of inventories existing prior to October 8.

"In order, therefore, to insure a reasonable supply for the people of the United States during the war period . . . sales at the present time and for the duration are being made by the distillers on a restricted basis," Taylor said. "Some of the smaller companies have suspended business entirely and a number of brands will disappear from the market. This means that in Ohio the total amount of gallonage which the department will be able to purchase in 1943 and the ensuing years will be somewhat less than that which was purchased in 1942."

The director said the department tried to build up a heavy

War Production Training School Here Invites Public To See It in Operation

School authorities, instructors and pupils today were ready for the "open house" to be held by the Vocational Training School for War Production in the Washington C. H. High School Tuesday night. O. M. Riegel, the school coordinator said Monday afternoon.

The school, which trains adults for work in war plants at night classes, is one of three in the state which has been given the stamp of approval of Patterson Field. Its activities have been coordinated with the Patterson Field program, it was pointed out, and for that reason many of its graduates—find places in the country's wartime aviation center.

Nothing special has been planned for the open house, Warren B. Root, the aviation mechanics instructor, and D. E. Petty, the machine instructor said. However, they added that this will give the people here an opportunity to see just how the school is conducted—to see the shops in action and some of the handiwork of the trainees.

The open house is being held, it was said, in the hope that it would stimulate enrollment, which they admit has fallen off to a place where it is causing some concern.

A. B. Murray, the superintendent of the city schools, who is the over-all supervisor, said many had asked about the open house plans and that this interest led school officials to expect a number of visitors.

PIPE FOR HUGE OIL LINE BEING UNLOADED HERE

Surveyors Are Now Busy in Western Part of the County

Twenty-four inch steel pipe, a half inch in thickness, is now being unloaded in the B. and O. yards between Main and Fayette Streets, and within a short time scores of carloads of the big pipe will reach this city as part of the cross-county oil line, 1363 miles in length, extending from Texas to the east coast.

Not only is the pipe reaching here by the dozens of carloads, but it is also being unloaded at other points in and near Fayette County so it will be ready for laying as soon as the big trench cutting machines are placed in operation within the next few weeks.

As the pipe is reaching points along the route, the engineers who are making the survey in Ohio are pushing their work, and are now in the western part of Fayette County. They will continue across Clinton, into Warren, and thence westward into Indiana.

A dozen or more men of the engineering and right-of-way force are now quartered at the Hotel Washington and the right-of-way work will be pushed as fast as necessary legal papers can be obtained.

Several additional members of the right-of-way force have reached the city in the past few days. Stakes have been placed at frequent intervals along the route of the survey.

As the work is being pushed in this community, other crews are busy in Indiana, Illinois and points eastward, so that the big line may be completed and in use by late 1943.

TOLL OF BOSTON FIRE REACHES 477 AS NIGHT CLUB RUINS CLEARED UP

District Fire Chief William J. Mahoney said that tangled and frightfully burned bodies were found four and five deep and that tables and chairs were scattered and tipped in a shambles among the dead.

As speedily as possible, physicians and specialists in the treatment of burns were mercifully ministering to the injured, using blood plasma rushed from the Red Cross in Washington and pain and poison-alleviating sulfa drugs.

Long lines of relatives and friends stood two abreast outside the city's morgues throughout the cold night waiting for a chance to identify bodies, many of them charred beyond recognition.

A board of inquiry, including fire officials, U. S. Navy representatives—there were servicemen among the dead—and two representatives of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which began its probe yesterday, reconvened today.

The death toll ranked only behind the steamship General Slocum fire in 1904 in New York's East River in which 1,021 died, Chicago Iroquois Theater fire of 1903, which claimed 602 lives, and the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906 in which 500 died.

Deputy Fire Chief John F. Mc-

Donough told investigating officials that he found a number of bodies, some within ten feet of a door equipped with a panic lock designed to open under pressure, but it was out of order and had been secured by another lock.

The death of many of the victims was ascribed by Medical Examiner Timothy Leary to monoxide poisoning and smoke inhalation. He said that a number were "terribly burned" after death.

The stamped for the exits began, fire officials said, when a girl, detecting a thin wisp of smoke curling along the walls, shouted "fire," and within seconds the crowd broke for the doorways.

The wrecked stucco building resembled a huge brick oven after the flames had been extinguished, with hardly a scorched spot on the outside walls and roof, but with the interior a mass of debris.

Among notables who escaped from the inferno was Charles (Buck) Jones, Van Nuys, Calif., cowboy star of the motion pictures, who was critically burned.

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty, indicated, in an interview that the youth who innocently started the fire should have been barred by law from working in the club.

"Isn't it against the law for a boy that age to work in a place where liquor is sold?" newsmen asked the commissioner.

"Well," he said "you know the rules. He isn't supposed to."

"There is no doubt that the boy started the fire," Timilty added, "and there is no doubt that it was accidental."

Claflin quoted the boy as saying:

"A patron came into the place and unscrewed a bulb in the ceiling. This made the room too dark. One of the waiters came to me and asked me to screw the bulb back in."

"I stood on a chair to do it. I lighted a match and held it while I screwed the bulb in with the other hand. The match set fire to the palm tree. That is how the fire started."

A night club singer, Billy Payne, saved ten patrons by leading them into a huge basement ice box.

FURNACE STARTS FIRE LATE SUNDAY

Stubborn Blaze Requires Time To Extinguish

Fire, starting from an overheated furnace pipe at the Weldon Spurlock home, 213 West Market Street about 10:10 o'clock Sunday night, occupied the attention of firemen for an hour before the fire could be extinguished.

The first had caught between the chimney and floor joist, and worked upward between the plastering to the second floor, then under the second floor as well as upward in the partition above the second floor.

It was necessary to chop several holes in the partition to reach the fire with the fog nozzle.

RISEING PRICE OF REAL ESTATE INDICATED HERE

Scott Hays Farms Bring Considerably Above the Appraised Value

Further evidence of the rising price of real estate as well as city property, was demonstrated Saturday, when two farms and a small piece of city property sold at partition sale, under the direction of Sheriff W. H. Icenhower.

The Scott Hays farms on the Prairie Road, eight miles north of Washington C. H., were the farm lands, and both tracts brought considerably more than the appraised value.

The home farm of 144 acres located on the Prairie Road, was appraised at $100 but was purchased by Charles Haigler of the State Road, for $125 per acre.

Another farm, known as the back farm, containing 148 acres, was appraised at $65 per acre and brought $88, the purchaser being Mrs. Gertrude Lampe. Total amount paid for the farms was $31,183.75.

The Jesse Campbell property on Eastern Avenue, appraised at $700, was sold for $917.

Bucks and Their Coach Are Best in Country

By JOHN COLBURN
COLUMBUS, Nov. 30.—(P)—Ohio State came up today with perhaps THE football team of the nation and THE coach of the year.

The Bucks were expected to vie with Georgia for the No. 1 spot in the Associated Press poll of gridiron experts as the result of a decisive 41 to 12 victory Saturday over the powerful Iowa Seahawks. Ohio rated third the past week behind Georgia Tech and Boston College, both of which were defeated Saturday.

Paul Brown, 34-year-old Ohio State coach with only two defeats in two seasons of "big time" collegiate competition since he jumped from the high school rank, easily was an outstanding candidate for "coach of the year" honors.

Already Western Conference champions, Ohio demonstrated against the Seahawks requisites of a great football team—speed, power, deception, scoring precision and defensive alertness.

The victory over the seasoned Seahawks of Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, Ohio's ninth in ten games, again was a team triumph. Every Ohio man in the lineup played some kind of a starring role. And as a team triumph, it was a tribute to the coaching skill of Brown.

Unable to plow through the much heavier Seahawk line, Ohio used its speed to run around the ends and to take to the air lanes with almost uncanny results. The Bucks completed six out of seven passes.

Standouts offensively were Capt. George Lynn of Niles, who turned in another stellar job of quarterbacking, halfbacks Paul Sarringhaus of Hamilton, Les Horvath of Cleveland and Tommy James of Massillon, fullback Gene Fekete of Findlay, and end Robert Shaw of Fremont.

CHICAGO BEARS WIN PRO TITLE WITH FLOURISH

Rams Hit Tough Line for Minus 12 Yards in Season's Finale

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(P)—After watching his Cleveland Rams battered 47 to 0 yesterday, Dutch Clark applauded the Chicago Bears line with a few words of praise—which was only natural for his team had a minus 12 yards trying to break through it.

"That line is a marvel," he shuddered.

The Bears rolled to their biggest victory margin of the season in reaching the milestone of 23 games without defeat, 17 in the national football league action.

The national champions close their regular schedule Sunday against the Cards at Comiskey Park and a win would give them their first unbeaten, untied campaign since 1934.

Other finals games send Pittsburgh against Green Bay at Milwaukee and Brooklyn to New York.

Washington completed its best league season in 11 years yesterday by pounding the Detroit Lions 15 to 3, the Pittsburgh Steelers shutout the Brooklyn Dodgers 13 to 0, the New York Giants beat the Cardinals 21 to 7, and the Packers pressed through the Philadelphia Eagles 7 to 0.

The 41 to 12 score provided the answer to what a well conditioned, speedy but smaller team could do with an array of slower ex-college and pro stars.

"Ohio State had the speed—and a swell set of backs," said Colonel Biernan, the former Minnesota mentor.

A captain for 1943 will be chosen at the team's appreciation dinner tonight. Lynn, eligible for another year, would probably have been re-elected, but he will not play football next year. He completes his college work next August, and plans to enter the army.

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(P)—Look for a tremendous turnover in football coaching before next season (if there is a next season). . . . The news that Dick Harlow of Harvard and Jack Hagerty of Georgetown had joined the Navy gave a hint of what you can expect. Dartmouth's Tuss McLaughry and Syracuse's Ossie Solem both are looking for commissions.

Answering Hank Wolfe's query as to whether Ray Marshall's 102-yard touchdown run for John Marshall High of Richmond was the season's longest in high school circles, a reader sends a clipping from the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times Union in which Bobby Hague of Fletcher High at Jacksonville Beach is credited with a 105-yard run from scrimmage. . . . What kind of a field do they play on there, anyway? . . . Doesn't matter, though, because Wolfe sends further word that movies proved Marshall of Marshall actually ran 110 yards, intercepting a pass right on the end line. We're sure that can't be beaten.

Bob Bescher Killed in Accident; Baseball Idol Here 25 Years Ago

Robert (Bob) Bescher, 55, who was the idol of baseball fans here 25 or 30 years ago, met death in a Pennsylvania Railroad grade crossing accident at London Sunday night. Mrs. Delphine Moher, 43, of South Vienna, who was with him in the car, also was killed.

Bescher played baseball with Cincinnati, New York, St. Louis and Cleveland during his long and notable career in the major leagues, but he is best remembered as the fleet-footed who patrolled the outfield for the Cincinnati Reds. A good hitter and one of the best base runners of his day, Bob Bescher was familiar to Red boosters here.

His home was in London and on more than one occasion the famous Bescher has played baseball in Washington C. H., both with the Reds when they stopped over here semi-occasionally for an exhibition game and later, after his retirement from the majors, with semi-pro aggregations. He never fails to draw the cheers of the crowd here, oldtimers recall.

After hanging up his uniform and spikes, Bescher went back to London—and after a few years to more or less obscurity. He is remembered here as a lover of all kinds of sports and there is an old story the high school footballers of a couple of decades ago like to tell about him. It goes something like this:

The teams of Washington C. H. and London high schools were playing at London one autumn afternoon. The rivalry was keen and the game close. There were no grandstands, not even makeshift bleachers, and the crowd stood, or ran along the sidelines, sometimes with only a wire on light sticks to hold it back. Bob Bescher was in the crowd that day as he had been at many other games. He was enthusiastic as one of the high school kids, for he loved football and the youngsters that played the game. And, his exuberance apparently overflowed on this day because, as a Washington C. H. boy broke loose and started tearing down the sidelines, the old ball player and athlete could not restrain himself. He dashed onto the field—that meant only a few steps—and made the tackle that stopped the touchdown run.

That spectacle was so shocking, so unusual, that it alone remains in the memories of the players and spectators of that afternoon. None can remember what happened after that, or even who won the game.

Three Teams Tied at Top Of One Loop

The Cleo Colas, Warner Service crew and Pioneers were deadlocked at the top of the Industrial League bowling standing after last week's round of games were marked by some of the keenest competition to date and a couple of mild upsets. Behind them in fourth place, with an even break in the 18 games they have rolled, come the Albers Marketeers followed by the Pure Pointers and Pennington Bakers.

While it is mathematically possible for either the Marketeers or Pure Pointers to take the top by winning all of next week's games while the three leaders are losing all three of theirs, it is actually impossible because of the schedule.

Light's Daughters were perched all alone at the top of the Ladies League after the figures had been added up for last week's matches. The Hawkenson Retreaders were two games behind in second place and Craig's Air Steppers were a like distance back in third place.

Bob Steuber Beats Fekete In Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(P)—Although Bob Steuber of Missouri and Gene Fekete of Ohio State increased their scoring totals in last week's games, neither did it with enough fervor to threaten the leadership of Eddie McGovern of Rose Poly, whose team completed its season two weeks ago.

Steuber remains in third place with 114 points to 165 for McGovern and has another chance this Saturday. With the Iowa Pre-Flight team furnishing the opposition, however, it is unlikely that the Missouri halfback will wipe out the 51-point difference.

Football Champions Are Crowned As Dizzy Season Comes to End

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (AP)—The dizziest football season of them all, complicated by the uncertainties of war, had all but run its course today, leaving coaches, players and fans convinced that the definition of armed conflict by a fellow named Sherman was a masterpiece of understatement.

All sections of the country have succeeded in crowning champions except the Pacific coast, where they may need another two weeks and the help of a bloodhound to find a conference titlist and a host team for the Rose Bowl game.

The remainder of the country saw the screwy campaign stagger to what amounted to a finish Saturday and unload what surprises it had left on an unsuspecting public.

Holy Cross, a 4-to-1 underdog, crushed Boston College's previously unbeaten Eagles, 55-

12. Navy pinned a 14-0 defeat on an Army team that was favored at 3-to-1. And Georgia, humbled by Auburn the week before, bounced back to ruin Georgia Tech's spotless record, 34-0.

The day's activities added to the lineup of conference champions until now it looks like this:

Western—Ohio State.
Ivy League—Pennsylvania.
Southeastern—Georgia.
Big Three—Yale.
Southwest—Texas.
Big Six—Missouri.
Southern—William and Mary.
Missouri Valley—Tulsa.
Big Seven—Utah and Colorado (tie).

Pacific Coast—Still undecided. The picture for the January 1 bowl games looked like this today (won-lost-tied records in parentheses):

Rose Bowl at Pasadena—Georgia (10-1-0) vs. Pacific coast champion.

Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Tulsa (10-0-0) vs. Tennessee (8-1-1).

Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Texas (8-2-0) vs. Georgia Tech (9-1-0).

Orange Bowl at Miami—Boston College (8-1-0) vs. Alabama (7-3-0).

Corn Bowl at Chicago—Holy Cross (5-4-1) vs. unnamed opponent.

Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.—No teams selected.

Boston College, headed for the Sugar Bowl until the Holy Cross thing happened, was reported invited to the Orange Bowl along with Alabama, but there was nothing official about either bid.

The Corn Bowl, scheduled for Chicago's Soldier Field under the sponsorship of the Catholic Youth Organization, joined the list of post-season games yesterday with the initial invitation to Holy Cross.

We Stand Squarely for the Best Interest of the Citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

A MANDATE

To the majority of unprejudiced observers, the recent election expressed the opinion of our citizens in no unmistakable manner on some very elemental problems the country faces.

Without going into any partisan political angles, the handwriting on the wall is clear for Republicans and Democrats alike, as well as for any group seeking special privileges or favors at the expense of all the people.

The vote seemed to indicate plainly that above all else we want the war pushed to the limit of our ability with politics eliminated; that the people are tired of labor policies that put a premium on restricted production when increased man-hours are imperative; that the social reformer and business baiter be put on the shelf for the duration.

To put it in fewer words, as Dave Boone expressed it in the New York Sun, the people want to make sure that they continue "to live under a democracy and not under a 'don't list.'"

SERIOUS GERMAN LOSSES

Six months of the Russian war cost Germany 8,000 of her 11,000 locomotives, and the loss of three years of locomotive production. This is the heartening news that Howard K. Smith, former Berlin correspondent, tells in his new book, "Last Train From Berlin."

Sooner or later these losses will create an impossible condition, not only in the conduct of the war, but in the maintenance of life at home. The millions of Germans who voted for Hitler will have new cause to reflect on their lack of wisdom. As Smith says, "Hitler has not merely bitten the hand that fed him. He has swallowed it."

CARS ARE ESSENTIAL

A significant change has taken place in our approach to the tire problem, since Mr. Jeffers became "rubber czar." Nobody is trying to kid us any more into believing that all but a comparatively few of the nation's 27 million automobiles are a luxury. They are a grim necessity and the war effort will be impaired in direct proportion to the number of cars taken out of service. This new approach is a distinct help to public morale. It is an affirmative instead of a negative program.

The United States News reflects this new common sense attitude in a report to car owners "Automobile owners now have the government's assurance that they will be permitted to buy tires for essential operation of their cars. Whether the tires they buy will be new, used or recapped depends upon the amount of driving required by the car owners in their businesses and necessary household pursuits. No tires can be obtained for

Beaver Give a Dam to College

BOULDER, Colo.—Beaver, once seen only in the most remote reaches of the Colorado Rockies, brazenly have tried to build a dam across the meandering moat on the University of Colorado campus.

The busy beaver first were discovered when the moat overflowed and flooded lawns and streets.

When their house was torn out, the animals began gnawing campus trees in an effort to obtain material for a more substantial dam.

Weather's So Secret Weatherman Is Fooled

OKLAHOMA CITY—Oklahoma City air base soldiers thought they had figured out a clever but secret way of reading the early morning weather forecasts (long since forbidden on broadcasts) so that they might dress to meet the day's conditions.

The soldiers waited until members of the weather forecasting squadron came off of night duty. They observed closely what they were wearing. If it were raincoats, the soldiers donned oilskins; if it were shirtsleeves, they went without coats.

"But it doesn't work," the men complained. "Those fellows are always getting caught in the rain without raincoats!"

STOP WASTE FIRST

Arguments in favor of manpower mobilization legislation are persuasive. They will gain weight, however, when the WPA is abolished completely. So long as the federal government is making work with which to support employable men and women it is hard to convince Americans that they should be shuffled into and out of jobs like cards in a deck.

Some people are already worrying what we are going to do after the war is over. But just now it is more important to do something while the war is on.

There is still no shortage of rubber in the necks of many persons.

Shortage of Medical Manpower Due to War

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A LOOMING shortage in manpower for the war effort has come to my attention within the last week. In 1940 when the draft law was passed, we had four classes of medical students in our medical schools, already at some stage in the progress of their education.

The Army and Navy very wisely exempted these people from the draft, allowed them to finish their education and take their hospital internship. New freshman classes were enrolled in the Fall of 1941 and when the tempo of medical education was changed, we enrolled a class of freshman students in the Spring of 1942.

"Frozen" for War Service

These students are all "frozen" for military duty. Many of them are now in the service, but at the present time there are a number of young men of draft age who under normal circumstances would study medicine. A great many of these are afraid of the cry of "slacker" if they go into medical study now because it means they will be in civilian occupation for at least five years. Some of the more forward-looking medical colleges have already selected and frozen college students who will enter medical school in the Spring of 1943 and 1944, but that still leaves a large group unprotected.

The problem is a very serious one because it means that possibly for several years after 1948 medical schools will graduate a very much smaller class of physicians and this, added to the shortage which already exists in military as well as civilian medical manpower, will be a serious hazard. It would be foolish to point out this problem without having some suggestion as to how to deal with it and after thinking it over, I have the following tentative plan to propose. In the first place, women should be encouraged as much as possible to study medicine.

In many schools as much as 5 per cent of the student personnel is made up by women and there is no reason why this shouldn't be increased to 10 or 20 per cent. I believe the Surgeon General's Office, working with the American Medical Association and the faculties of colleges, should select young men who have a natural bent towards medicine (for instance, the sons of physicians) and designate them for medical training.

Should Have Uniforms

As soon as the medical student is signed up by the Army or Navy, he is given a commission in the Reserve Corps. But I believe that besides this, medical students selected by the Surgeon General's Office should be put in uniform and given a rank and pay commensurate with their standing in school. For example, the rank and pay of a private in the first year, a corporal in the second year, a sergeant in the third year, a top sergeant in the senior year and a second lieutenant in the interne year.

The uniform will protect them from the cry of "slacker" and the pay will solve a very serious problem that occurs to many medical students: of working in their vacations in order to pay their way through school. There are about 20,000 medical students in the medical schools in the United States at present so that this would not make a very serious assault on the Treasury.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Reader:—When one's sputum culture contains beta hemolytic streptococcus, hemolytic staphylococcus aureus, Friedlander's bacillus, alpha hemolytic streptococcus and a mixture of anaerobic organisms, what would you say was wrong with the patient?

Answer: The mouth, nose, throat and hence, the sputum, normally contain a large number of germs. Among them are all those you have named. In other words, this is not necessarily a sign of illness of any kind. Nobody can say anything is the matter with a patient from a report such as this.

Embattled Love

BY LORENA CARLETON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
San Francisco's fog brings the chance meeting of PAIGE SHELTON, whose sweetheart has just been killed fighting for the Allies, and RESTWICK (RUSTY) CARNES III, wealthy descendant of early Hawaiian settlers.

YESTERDAY, Rusty and Paige go to Reno to get married.

CHAPTER THREE

WITHOUT even glancing toward Rusty Carnes, Paige swung past him and swiftly headed for the street exit. But the man was directly back of her.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded, still using the offensively clear voice. No longer was it muddled, thick and impenetrable as the San Francisco fog.

"Leave me alone!" the girl said in a tense whisper. She was shrinking as much from the too brazen voice as from the man himself.

"I certainly will not!" He pinned her against a window of one of the lobby shops, blocking her escape with an arm on each side of her.

Doggedly Paige kept her gaze from him. She stared down into the shop at a painting propped low in the glass window. Peaches, grapes, pears, apples, all piled against a sliced, bright red, black-seeded watermelon. The irrelevance of the old-fashioned painting, in that town of frighteningly modern trends, fascinated Paige. And saved her from having to look at her strange red-haired companion.

"Were you by any chance trying to make a fool of me?"

The man's question brought the color up into Paige's unrouged cheeks. "I was trying to keep from making a fool of myself," she replied.

"But you were walking out on me." Disappointment was noticeable in the tone of his voice. And in his face when Paige turned to look at him.

"Yes."

"But why? Why, after you've come this far?"

"Because I can't go through with it."

"And who is making an antiquated statement now?" From their planted positions on the shop window Restwick Carnes' hands dropped to Paige's fur-clad shoulders. He shook her harshly. "Don't lose your spunk. Don't be a piker. We've both been jilted. Now we're going to make them pay for it. We're going to make them suffer as much as we."

The girl's gray eyes filled with golden flakes and then with the brightness of tears. "Oh, please—" she recommenced.

The red-haired man took her hand and gave it a rough, persuasive yank. "Come on." His manner was disgusted and impatient as he led her out into the crisp sunshine.

"Where are you taking me?"

"To the City Hall to get the license, of course."

"No." She made an abrupt stop. "I won't go. I don't have to. You can take care of it. Go on. My name is Paige Shelton. I'm 22 years old. I like caramel nut sundaes and wear a size 12 dress." She made a move toward the left. "I'll wait for you."

"Oh, no you don't!" The man's fingers tightened about her arm. "You're going to stick right with me."

"Surely you don't think I'm going to run away?"

He pointed out, "You were when I caught you."

"But I'm promising not to now. That makes a difference." Again she made a slight move. "I'll be waiting for you there on the bridge when you come back."

And she was. Leaning upon her elbows on the railing, watching the agitated trucker river. "How many wedding rings do you suppose are down there?" she asked when he leaned on the railing beside her.

"It probably depends on the rings. I doubt if many babes, no matter how disillusioned, toss their rings over as easily as their husbands. Not if the rings are set with diamonds or emeralds or such. They probably use a double from the 10-cent store for that big dramatic scene. That reminds me—"

He poked into a vest pocket and pulled out a wide platinum circle, filled with baguette diamonds; a buckle of rubies gave an effect of holding the ring together. "I hope this fits." He took her left hand.

Paige gave him a slow wondering stare. His auburn hair glistened in the sunlight. His face, freshly shaven, looked tanned and healthy. Distastefully healthy, she decided, considering his dissipation of the previous night. Just retaliation should make him look baggy and worn. Then she noticed his eyes; they were a giveaway, a bloodshot, cold blue.

"Where did you get it?" the girl asked.

"It's the one I bought for Eugenia."

Again she gave him a startled upward stare. But he was unperturbed by anything, except that the ring had lodged at the second knuckle.

"Never mind. I'll force it on when necessary."

"You can rehearse while we ride over to Aida. I have a taxi waiting. Imagine that. Oddly, in this famous town of divorcees, everyone wants to get married."

A flitting wave of relief went through Paige. A silly sensation, she told herself. What difference did it make if she got married in Reno? Just as Rusty said, many couples did. Persons who really loved each other, not persons just getting married. One for spite, the other, for some reason she couldn't even name.

Nevertheless, she could not force aside that little feeling of pleasure. It mounted when she saw Aida. "It is like an opera set," she told her silent companion.

Quiet, peaceful town with a towering, snow-crowned mountain on one side and a white-foamed, furious little brook on the other. Beside the brook was an inn of logs and rough plaster. A few chairs and three tables, covered with checked cloths were on the protected sunny porch. An enormous Maltese cat lay on a log balustrade.

Even the proprietor of the inn was a character. He sneezed out as the taxi swerved into his gravel driveway and began a series of jumping-jack bows, somewhat hampered by a white apron tied about his fat stomach. He kept bowing as Rusty Carnes, pushing Paige ahead of him, backed the man into his own place of business. The cab driver followed. And the Maltese cat.

The red-haired man sat down on a bar stool. "I'll have a Scotch and soda. And then I want you to tell us where to get married."

The proprietor beamed. "Scotch on a wedding day? No! No! No! Wine—a Royal Prematin Sherry—rich, not too dry."

"Scotch and soda!" Restwick Carnes' words were distinct and ill-humored. He consulted Paige, "Maybe you want wine?"

"How many wedding rings do you suppose are down there?" she asked.

"Nothing, thank you."

Rusty's invitation swept to his driver. "What about you?"

"Better not. Thanks just the same, mister." He moved to one of the slot machines, put in a coin and pulled the lever. Nothing happened.

Paige put out her sandaled toe and nuzzled the head of the Maltese cat. The taxi driver pulled the lever again and there still was no sound except that of his own mind marching onward with those of its predecessors.

Restwick Carnes pushed his quickly emptied glass across the bar. "I can't fly on one wing."

Paige smiled at the puzzled innkeeper. "I think I will have some of that sherry." She put a snapping $5 bill before her place. "And 50 dimes."

The red-haired man did not look up from his drink. Although the proprietor did not make a ceremony of the wine, Paige knew he was pleased because the beaming smile came back to his face. She picked up her glass and her roll of dimes and went to the machine adjoining that of the thoroughly disgruntled driver.

"Lemons," he grunted. "A guy'd think he was in the citrus belt."

"You just don't know how." Paige dropped a dime into her machine.

The air sang with the clatter of thin coins dropping like hail all around. They made little drifts in the slot and rolled onto the splintered wide-plank floor. The Maltese cat fled. Paige was smiling. The taxi driver also. Even the innkeeper, or was it just a grimace of open-mouthed despair. Rusty alone was disinterested. His head remained bent. His eyes looked down into his drink. His third one.

The girl shook her head when the driver tried to give her handful of coins. "No. They're all yours. Wedding gift." She walked away from his spluttered remonstrance and sat down by Restwick Carnes.

"Are you about ready?"

"Certainly." He picked up his change and turned to her. The freebies were beginning to stand out on his face, which was slightly flushed. "I can't for the life of me see why you were jilted. Just as I said last night, you're really very pretty."

Shower Party Given in Honor Of Mrs. Wood

Mrs. Eddie Jones charmingly filled the role of hostess for a lovely affair during the week end, when she entertained with a shower party complimenting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Richard Wood (Margaret Stowe), a recent bride.

Games were merrily contested during the evening, with attractive prizes presented to Mrs. Harold Gorman, for high score and Mrs. Paul Anschutz, for low.

The guests were invited to the dining room, where a large parol stood from a crystal hand on a mirror in the center of the table. Large drops of artificial rain were most effective in the unusual and novel idea. Prettily wrapped gifts were arranged on the table, and the lovely blonde guest of honor, made happy responses for each gift.

A tempting course was served at the close of the evening, with a bridal motif suggested in the delightful repast.

The guests included Mrs. Jack Nisely, Mrs. Lucy Butcher, Mrs. Anschutz, Mrs. Ralph Lucas, Mrs. William Gardner, Mrs. Kenneth Warner, Mrs. Russell Warner, Mrs. Wilbur Campbell, Mrs. Emmett Campbell, Mrs. Gorman, Miss Esther West and Miss Jane Campbell.

Marjorie Dean Is Bride of Raymond Hart

A marriage solemnized in Grace Methodist parsonage, on Thanksgiving Day, elicits the interest of both Fayette and Clinton friends and relatives, when Miss Marjorie Dean, daughter of Mrs. Esther Dean, of Madison Mills, became the bride of Mr. Raymond Hart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph V. Hart, of Wilmington.

The impressive ring service was read by Rev. George B. Parkin at 10:30 A. M.

The very attractive bride was lovely in an aqua dress with brilliant tan accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of pink rosebuds.

Immediately after the wedding, the bride's parents entertained with a dinner at their home.

Mr. Hart has been employed at the Pennington Bakery for quite a while.

The young couple will reside in their newly furnished apartment, in the Ashley home at 418 East Market Street.

Surgical Unit Work Needs More Women for Work

With the Thanksgiving holiday season in the past, it is hoped that the essential work done at Surgical Dressing meetings, will again be given an important place in our ladies' weekly calendar.

Although there is plenty of work to be done, enthusiasm has slackened during the past two weeks, and it is hoped that a stimulative interest will be regained.

Mrs. Martha Braun has announced that there is quite a lot of Red Cross work on hand, and if the ladies who have signed up previously, will again report for service and any newcomers who are willing to devote their time to this very worthy cause, the necessary war work will be accomplished.

Game Dinner

A delightful and informal dinner party was entertained on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Hoy O. Simons, when they entertained a number of friends for a game dinner at one-thirty o'clock at the Washington Country Club.

The dinner was served at a perfectly appointed table, covered with a lace cloth. The centerpiece was most unusual and greatly admired, with small artificial pheasants, placed throughout an abundance of pine cones and cedar.

Mr. and Mrs. Simons took their guests to the cinema at the Fayette Theater during the afternoon.

REDS SMASH GERMANS AS ALLIES DRIVE WEDGE IN NORTH AFRICA FRONT

drawn up within range of the fortified city.

"Fighting continues on the eastern side of Djedeida," it was announced by Allied headquarters in North Africa and the War Department in Washington, indicating that the Allies were closing in on Tunis.

"Allied bombers have made a night raid on the docks at Bizerte. Bursts were seen on the target."

A Vichy broadcast said British troops on the Tunisian-Algerian frontier had been reinforced by armored contingents, but declared that the Germans had captured a height in the Tunisian Mountains and taken 110 prisoners.

Italian field headquarters asserted that Axis troops had captured "an important position" in Tunisia, stopped armor-supported Allied columns and captured more than 200 prisoners.

Rail connections between Tunis and the great naval base at Bizerte, 40 miles to the north, were cut off by the Allied thrusts to Djedeida and to Mateur, 25 miles south of Bizerte.

British headquarters said Allied heavy bombers pounded anew at Tripoli, Tunis and Bizerte, softening up the German and Italian strongholds as a prelude to the land assault to drive the Axis into the sea.

For the fourth consecutive day, the British communicate announced "nothing to report from our land forces" in Libya as Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's 8th arm awaited the arrival of fresh forces and supplies moving hundreds of miles across the desert.

On the Soviet front, Russia's great winter offensive engulfed another German stronghold on the Don as the Red armies, slaughtering 10,000 Nazi troops a day, advanced several miles and drove the invaders farther back toward the bayonets of the Stalingrad garrison.

Dispatches to Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said 100,000 Germans had been killed and 66,000 captured in the flaming Stalingrad battle theater in the 10 days period ending yesterday.

In addition, 14,800 Nazis were listed as killed on the central (Moscow) front, making a grand total of 180,000 knocked out of action in the two Soviet offensives. This does not include the wounded.

Soviet quarters said the two Stalingrad-Moscow operations were the greatest undertaken by the Russians in 17 months of war. "The German army is facing the blackest moment since its invasion of Russia," these quarters said.

Inside long-besieged Stalingrad, the Russians said Nazi troops repeatedly and vainly attacked in an effort to regain positions in the bloody northside factory district, losing more than 750 dead as Soviet defenders held fast.

The Vichy radio announced that French resistance to British occupation of the Island of Reunion ended at 8:45 A. M. today. British Imperial forces, largely South African troops, were reported by a Vichy communique Saturday to have landed on Reunion, in the Indian ocean, 400 miles east of British-occupied Madagascar.

Announcing that they had seized the town of Saint Denis La Reunion, the Saturday Bulletin said "resistance is being organized."

A French possession since 1643, Reunion was the last island of the French empire to remain under Vichy's control.

(While the reports of the occupation were not immediately confirmed by Allied quarters, this would be a logical expansion of footholds taken by the Allies in the Indian Ocean area to combat Axis submarine and espionage activities.)

General MacArthur's hard-hitting flying fortresses smashed another Japanese attempt to reinforce the harassed Buna garrison by setting fire to two enemy destroyers off the east coast of New Guinea yesterday and sending two others fleeing northward, an Allied communique announced today.

Direct hits with 500-pound bombs were scored on the destroyers which were set aflame and both were believed to have sunk later, the announcement said.

The same bulletin also disclosed that Allied naval forces had intercepted an 8,000-ton German auxiliary west of Australia, pound the vessel with gunfire and captured 78 of the crew after they had scuttled their ship.

It was the first report of naval activity in that area in many months.

On the New Guinea land front American and Australian troops were reported maintaining steady pressure on Japanese forces clinging to a 10-mile strip of coast in Buna-Gona sector, but there apparently was little change in the general situation.

Farther up the coast Allied attack and fighter plane made a surprise assault on the enemy air-drome at Lae, sweeping in from low altitudes in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

"Five enemy fighters in dispersal bays were destroyed by strafing," said the communique. "Direct hits were scored with bombs on two other planes. In addition bomb clusters burst in the midst

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—(P)—Corn prices were up as much as a cent a bushel at one time today to the highest quotations for almost two months, but other cereals lagged behind and wheat turned fractionally lower.

Liquidation of December contracts prior to the delivery period starting tomorrow depressed all grains to some extent but strong industrial demand for corn, with country offerings and receipts limited, more than offset this.

Cash corn prices were the highest since mid-August and No. 2 yellow sold above 87c, at the best premium over December futures so far this season.

Corn closed ¼-½c higher than Saturday, December 84¼-¾c, May 89¼-¾c; wheat ¼-½c lower, December 1.24½, May 1.29½-¾c; oats ¼-¾c down; rye ¼-½c lower; soybeans ¼-¾c off.

of a group of eight aircraft, probably destroying or damaging all."

Other medium bombers operating far to the east of New Guinea raid the Japanese airdrome at Kavieng, New Ireland, dropping high explosives on dispersal bays.

Their Kiska base under almost constant pounding by American bombers, the Japanese are attempting to secure a new foothold on the bleak little island of Attu, westernmost of the Aleutian chain.

The Navy disclosed yesterday that the enemy had reappeared on Attu by announcing army "flying fortresses" had attacked a small Japanese cargo vessel off the island, setting it afire with three bomb hits on Thanksgiving Day. When last seen, the vessel appeared to be sinking.

The communique said fighters accompanying the "fortresses" also had strafed enemy anti-aircraft installations on the island, indicating that the Japanese would attempt a show of resistance against attacks such as those that have made their Kiska base, 160 miles to the east, virtually useless. Attu lies about three-fourths of the way from Alaska to the Jurile Islands of Japan.
